

A historical illustration depicting the opening of Yokohama to foreign ships in 1859. The scene shows a harbor with several large sailing ships from various nations, including the United States, France, and the United Kingdom, flying their respective flags. In the foreground, a large crowd of people, including Westerners in top hats and Japanese in traditional attire, are gathered on a promenade. A large, stylized orange Japanese character '横浜' (Yokohama) is overlaid on the left side of the image.

ACM International Conference on Multimedia Retrieval

June 11-14, 2018, Yokohama, Japan